Resolved, That the Republican party has a just and honorable pride in the past history of the Republican party, identified as it is with the great triumphs of human freedom and progress, with the emancipation of an oppressed people from bondage; identified with the preservation of our country from anarchy and from threatened by the late rebellion, and that while we appreciate the great questions now presented to the country, many of which are the outgrowth of civil war, we rejoice that unlike those whose record in opposition to the war for the preservation of the Union is so thoroughly written, we have no cause for consigning the past with its eventful memories to oblivion, and that we adhere to the principles of constitutionalism and loyalty contained in its teachings.

Resolved, That while we recognize the excellence of our State government, existing under and acting in harmony with the Constitution of the United States, we believe that the Federal Government, established under the same Constitution, does possess and ought to exercise sufficient power to protect the rights of citizens in the full and free expression of his sentiments, in the free exercise of the ballot, in the fullest enjoyment of his property and in absolute safety of his person, wherever the American flag floats over American soil, and that this protection the government should afford to the humblest citizen of the United States, whether upon the land or at sea, at home or abroad.

Resolved, That in the present exigencies of our country the tariff on imports is the readiest and least oppressive mode of raising the revenue for the support of the Government, and the support of the Federal Government, and that in assessing duties, care should be taken to so adjust them as not to prohibit, but to promote, the interests of every citizen and branch of industry in the land, special pains being taken to foster in one very practicable way the honor and interests of the American laborer.

In the next two resolutions Congressional action is recommended for the revival of American commerce and faith in the principles of prohibition reaffirmed.

Finally it was resolved that the administration of the present Secretary of the economical management of the national finances and its enormous reduction of the national debt, by the conduct of foreign affairs, especially in securing an honorable and advantageous adjustment of all our difficulties with Great Britain, by its patriotic and determined efforts to reform the civil service of the country, by its humane and successful policy in dealing with the Indians, by its persistent efforts to secure the rights of every American citizen without regard to race, caste or color, does deserve the confidence and receive the renewed expression of our confidence and assurance of our unwavering support.

NEW YORK, June 29, 1871.

THE BOUTWELL PLEASONTON QUARREL.

The Tribune's correspondent telegraphs from Washington last evening as follows: Among the first to call upon the President after his arrival yesterday morning was General Pleasonton, with a written statement of his quarrel with Secretary Boutwell, which he had during the past few days prepared with great care. Failing to see the President on his first visit, he was obliged to go to the White House a second and third time. General Pleasonton claims that from the formation of the Government certain duties were entrusted to each of the Bureaus, with which neither the Secretary of that Department, nor any one else, has been allowed to interfere, and that this was necessary in order that too much power or responsibility shall not be entrusted to one man. He says that former Secretaries of the Treasury have attempted to reverse the decisions of their Bureau officers, but have been overruled by the President in almost every important instance, and quotes as an example, a case where the Controller in the Treasury Department, whose decision was reversed by the Secretary of the Treasury, appealed to General Jackson, in which the latter decided that neither the secretary nor even the President had the right to revise the Controller's work. Gen. Pleasonton claims that on the organization of the Internal Revenue Bureau it was made more independent of the Secretary than any of the others, and that the very organic act describing the Commissioner's duty, makes no provision by the Secretary. He claims, too, that the drift of the legislation since the Bureau was established, has been to increase the powers of the Commissioners, and to make his office more independent. In his conversation he seemed positive that when the matter is fully understood by the President, it will be decided in his favor. Secretary Boutwell, on the other hand, seems to feel very secure in the position he has taken, and is in no hurry to trouble the President about the matter. He did not go to the White House yesterday, and will not probably take any pains to defend himself unless it shall prove necessary. He acts as though he believed that in the discharge of his duty at the head of the department required the pass with its eventful memories to obliviand his actions, when viewed in the light of patriotism and loyalty contained in its teachings.

Resolved, That while we recognize the excellence of our State government, existing under and acting in harmony with the Constitution of the United States, we believe that the Federal Government, established under the same Constitution, does possess and ought to exercise sufficient power to protect the rights of citizens in the full and free expression of his sentiments, in the free exercise of the ballot, in the fullest enjoyment of his property and in absolute safety of his person, wherever the American flag floats over American soil, and that this protection the government should afford to the humblest citizen of the United States, whether upon the land or at sea, at home or abroad.

BEAVER, PA.

[Special Correspondence Pittsburgh Gazette.]

BEAVER, June 29, 1871.

The closing exercises of Beaver Seminary and Institute are still in progress, gaining in interest, making impressions never to be lost. The grand concert by the pupils of Professor Beiter, on Tuesday evening, was a great success, as are all his concerts. All, without an exception, did credit to themselves and their teachers. It is not necessary to point to any in particular, as all did so well. Wednesday was devoted to the examining of the following classes: Arithmetic, French, Natural Philosophy, Algebra II., Latin Reader, Geometry, Physiology, Natural Theology. All acquitted themselves very creditably, showing that they were familiar with their studies.

The "Seminary Messenger," by Miss Mary Lyon was one of the finest productions we have listened to for some time. Her reading was impressive and showed that she felt what she said.

Tuesday evening was devoted to the exercises by the Alumni Association of the Seminary. The following programme was carried out: Music—Mrs. Scott; Prayer, Dr. R. T. Taylor; Song, Miss Rose Milliner; Rev. W. H. Locke, D. D., was elected Secretary pro tem; Roll called, Song, Miss Echer; Address, Miss Mollie Walker, Washington, D. C.; Music, Miss Maggie Cox; Original Declamation and "Possibilities," Miss Maggie Taylor; Song, Miss Sue May.

The following resolutions were then read: "

WHEREAS, we have learned with regret of the recent demise of our sister and friend Miss Josephine DeVaine, of the class of 1861—

Resolved 1st, That we recognize in her death the hand of Providence and while led to mourn our loss rejoice in her eternal gain.

Resolved 2nd, That we extend to her many virtues and remember with tenderness and deep affection, her sweet companionship.

Resolved 3rd, That we extend to her family the deepest sympathy.

Resolved 4th, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the members of the deceased and published.

P. R. R. AND B. & O. ROADS.

It is right that both sides should be heard in every controversy. We therefore give place to the following communi- cation "lay" with pleasure. It is from a gentleman who has no connection either in the Pennsylvania Central or Baltimore & Ohio Road. We published the speech of President Garrett, in common with the other city papers, as a part of the proceedings connected with the opening of the Pittsburgh & Connellsville Road, without intending, as our correspondent well knows, and as indeed he states in his communication, to cast any reflection either on the Pennsylvania Railroad or its managers. We believe, and have always contended, that it is of great importance to the interests of Pittsburgh and the State. Indeed it is of almost incalculable benefit to the whole nation. It occupies the entire field of connections between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, and without doubt is the greatest and best managed road in the world. Yet its managers have been abused and even villified by those who have never properly studied its great importance to the nation, or whose pride has been wounded by its unprecedented success and prosperity.

Colonel J. W. Forney gave a faithful portrait of its energetic and genial Vice President, Thomas A. Scott, Esq., upon whom rests the great burden of the active management of its diversified interests, when he said a few days ago: "It deserves to be said that in his capacity at the head of a gigantic corporation, he has never gambled with its great interests at the stock exchange, never corrupted judges or juries, never turned what belonged to others to selfish or to mercenary ends, and it is undoubtedly to his exact, accurate, and inflexible business principles that the great Pennsylvania Central is chiefly indebted for its sound and increasing prosperity." This testimony, which is given by one who has known Colonel Scott so long, and so intimately as Mr. Forney has, should be received in preference to the thousand unfounded reports put in circulation by men whose hearts are filled with envy and jealousy at his great ability and success.

It is well known that the GAZETTE is progressive in its policy regarding railroads. It believes, with a distinguished railroad President, who said a few days ago in the presence of the writer, that every railroad should be built that will enhance the prosperity of Pittsburgh and the country. And it is the Pennsylvania Central has contributed in no small degree to the prosperity no one can deny. It is the pride of our State and our nation.

That the Pittsburgh and Connellsville road will also contribute much to our prosperity, we have already declared in as strong terms as we could possibly use. We therefore rejoice in its completion, and congratulate its able managers on their success.

For President Garrett we entertain nothing but feelings of the highest regard. He is a good Christian gentleman, a shrewd financier, an able orator, and a first-class railroad operator. He had a right to please his own taste as to the matter of the speech he delivered at the banquet on Tuesday evening, and whilst we published it, it was not our intention to cast any reflections on our own great institution, the Pennsylvania Railroad, which is every day becoming more popular with our citizens, who have come to realize its immense advantage to Pittsburgh.

With these remarks, we will allow our esteemed correspondent, "Fair Play," to give his opinion in regard to the controversy that has been in some measure re-opened.

EDITORS GAZETTE: I suppose newspapers are not under any obligation to criticise every speech delivered at every public meeting. I am well aware that no other journal in this city has shown more favor to, or taken greater interest in railroad enterprises than the GAZETTE. It has dealt fairly with all the roads. It has defended the great Pennsylvania Central, of which every Pennsylvanian should feel proud, as it is the largest railroad corporation, I suppose, in the world, and its various lines are the best managed. It justly excites the admiration of all, of whatever country, who travel over it. It has made Pennsylvania. But the GAZETTE has contributed no little to advance the interests of the Pittsburgh and Connellsville Railroad. And lest delicacy would prevent you from saying anything by way of criticism, of the speech of J. W. Garrett, Esq., (who was a guest of the city) at the banquet on Tuesday evening, I feel that it should not be allowed to go unnoticed. As to the taste which prompted it, I shall say nothing. Every man has a right to his own judgment in matters of this kind.

The burden of Mr. Garrett's speech was, that the Pennsylvania Railroad had done many naughty things, all of which were adverse to the interests of Pittsburgh. In fact that the Pennsylvania Railroad had done everything in its power to destroy Pittsburgh. On the other hand, he claimed that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad had almost no other object in view than to build up Pittsburgh, and deliver her from the shackles which the great "monopoly" had riveted upon her.

This all looks very nice now. But there is a little bit of history that our distinguished guest forgot to give. Our citizens here remember well the difficulty that Harmar Denny, William Robinson, Jr., George Darsie, William Larimer and others had about 1846 to induce the Baltimore and Ohio Company to consider favorably the project of connecting Baltimore and Pittsburgh by railroad, and more especially if the connection would in any way contribute to the welfare of Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania. If the only object, or the chief one, of the Baltimore and Ohio Company had been to advance the interests of Pittsburgh they would in the first place have extended their road to the head of the Ohio instead of taking it to Wheeling. If they had come to Pittsburgh in the first place they would have had a shorter route to the Ohio, and one much easier of construction than that which they chose. Of course, they intended to unshackle Pittsburgh by going to Wheeling!

But what, Messrs. Editors, was the response given by the Baltimore and Ohio Company to the request for aid to enable the Pittsburgh and Connellsville Company to finish their road to the Maryland line? It was that aid would only be given to enterprise "if not allowed to deviate from the direction of building their own road" and that they chose to take a more expensive route to more southern point on the Ohio," by way of giving Pittsburgh an outlet for her commerce and manufactures! This decision was come to at a time when Pittsburgh was almost shut out from the eastern world." If the Baltimore and Ohio Company had been as benevolent, and had had as great a regard for the interests of Pittsburgh, as President Garrett claims for them, they would have built their road to Pittsburgh in the first place.

In July 1846, the Pittsburgh and Connellsville Company asked the Baltimore and Ohio Company to grant the privilege to the Franklin or Cumberland Valley Railroad Company, or other Company or Companies to connect with and intersect the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at or near Hancock, or any other available point on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. When this proposition was submitted, the intention of which was to give Pittsburgh a railroad connection with Harrisburg and Philadelphia and promote the interests of Pennsylvania generally, the Baltimore and Ohio Company manifested an unwillingness to continue negotiations further. And in response to the proposition, the acting President of the Baltimore and Ohio Company said: "In regard to the permission to be given of a connection with the Franklin Railroad, so as to communicate with Philadelphia, I cannot at the moment express any opinion."

But as soon as the Pennsylvania Railroad Company began to stretch out its strong iron arms for the relief of Pittsburgh, the Baltimore and Ohio became more concerned for our interests. If that Company had chosen they might have made a connection with Pittsburgh long before the Pennsylvania Railroad Company did. The truth is that Boston, New York and Baltimore endeavored to direct the Western traffic from Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania altogether. That this was the intention of the Baltimore and Ohio Company is evident from the fact that they built their road in the first place to Wheeling, "a more legitimate Southern point," instead of to Pittsburgh.

The Baltimore and Ohio Company is one of the oldest companies in the country. But the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has outstripped it in the race for Western connections, which are so highly advantageous to the State of Pennsylvania. Hinc illae lachrymae. The Baltimore and Ohio Company sought for more legitimate Southern points, until the Pennsylvania Railroad Company became master of the field from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Now they give vent to their jealousy by uttering a tirade of abuse against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and even go so low as to single out individual officers as the object of their hatred. But the tide cannot be stopped by a "pitchfork." The Pennsylvania Central is a mine of wealth to our State, and we cannot allow any abuse that is heaped upon it to go unrebuked, no matter how worthy the gentlemen may be that abuse it. By it we have a direct route to Baltimore, and in a few months it will give us an independent line to Washington, so that we will not be put to the trouble of having our baggage re-checked at Baltimore and receiving our tickets from conductors on the Northern Central, over the Washington Branch of the B. and O., inconveniences to which we are now subjected through the illiberality of the Baltimore and Ohio Company.

It is not to be understood from these remarks that I am unfriendly to the Pittsburgh and Connellsville road. No one rejoices more in its completion than I do. I approve of every word you wrote a few days ago about its importance, and the energy displayed by W. O. Hughart, Esq., President, and J. H. Page, Esq. Secretary and Treasurer, in bringing it to completion, but I object to the tone of Mr. Garrett's speech, which from the first to the last sentence is a tirade of abuse against John Edgar Thompson and Thos. A. Scott, Esqs., and the great corporation which they represent and manage with consummate skill and ability. The speech might be incorporated in an annual report of the B. & O. Company, but in my humble opinion it was out of taste before a Pennsylvania audience.

I admire the liberality of the Baltimoreans and the B. & O. Company, as displayed in their liberal loans, which they expect to be paid, to the Pittsburgh and Connellsville railroad, but we must not forget that the Pennsylvania Railroad has proved of immense advantage to our State and city, and has done for us already as much as the B. & O. will be able to do for many long years to come.

But the fact must not be everlooked that what the B. & O. is doing is in self defence. The Pennsylvania Railroad has a perfect right to act upon the same principle. I am not the champion of, nor in any way connected with, either of the roads, but I am always in favor of FAIR PLAY.

A New Woman's Rights Movement.

Boiling potatoes is apparently one of the most simple operations of elementary cookery. Yet of recent years it has been seldom a gentleman had the courage to say that not one girl in seventeen, of a certain parish he knew, could boil a potato. Others state that so great is the disregard of English house-wives just now for all household matters, that this "indifference is one of the most outward and visible signs of the deterioration of the English nation." These statements are a little "steep," but nevertheless every one recognizes the comparative domestic incompetency of the average British women. No one recognizes it more thoroughly than Miss Emily Faithful, who has recently established an institute specially designed to meet this evil. This is her new "Training Institution in Economy." Its object is to remove the ignorance of women in all that relates to household management and domestic economy. It is intended for high and low—to make good mistresses as well as good servants. In this institute lectures on cooking, food, housekeeping, the laws of health, &c., can be attended equally as well as lectures on music and similar accomplishments. The higher branches as well as the lower will be taught, and through its kitchens a mistress or a teacher can graduate. The institute is to be established in the west end of London; to it there will be attached a reading-room and restaurant, which will in a measure make it self-supporting. Miss Faithful will start this institution as soon as the necessary capital—£2,000—is subscribed. Of this sum one-half has already been collected.

Villainy.

The New York World says: In the town of Halfmoon, in Saratoga county, a man named Isaac G. Lansing is now under arrest charged with plotting the murder of his wife. About a week and a half ago Mr. Lansing went West, and immediately after his departure a report was circulated to the effect that he had hired a man to kill his wife while he should be away. In a few days he returned and commenced a suit for slander against Abram Devoe, of Crescent, to whom the murder had been traced. Thereupon Devoe made oath that what he had said was substantially true; that more than a year ago Lansing told him he lived unhappily at home and would pay him (Devoe) to "put his wife out of the way." The offer was received with seeming favor, and on the strength of his criminated willingness to the deed Devoe received several presents from his principal, and determined to make use of his secret in order to blackmail Lansing. He now says that about two weeks ago Lansing told him of his intended trip to the West, and said that he should leave his wife at home to be disposed of; moreover, he gave a minute description of how his house was to be entered through an insecure window, of his wife's sleeping-room, and suggested that it would be well to rob a neighboring house as a "blind." When all should be accomplished Devoe says he was to receive $100. The story is not consistent with itself in detail, yet it possesses enough of circumstantiality to show that Devoe is an ingenious liar if Lansing is not almost as bad a ruffian as the late Mr. Rulloff.

NAPOLEON BONAPARTE FORREST, Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klans, has been summoned before the Congressional Committee, and after pooh-poohing the whole affair, was obliged to acknowledge that the Ku Klux were in operation throughout the South during the last Presidential election, and that he was a member of the gang. To be sure, he quibbled about the title of the organization, and said that it was not Ku Kluk to which he belonged, but White Camelias; afterward he "reckoned" it was the Pale-Faces to which he adhered. But what's in the name? Mr. Forrest has acknowledged that he belonged to a body of men, known by various titles, but well understood to be the Ku Klux Klan. With this forced confession we are not surprised to hear of the petition from over sixty residents of Fayette County, Ala., asking for protection from the Ku Klux, which such men as Forrest are ready to swear do not exist. After the unpleasant exhibition of this witness before the Ku Klux Committe, people will be reluctant to accept any of his voluntary vaporings as truth.—N. Y. Tribune.

THERE is to be a pioneer celebration at Greenville, Ohio, on the Fourth of July. The sensation feature of the celebration will be the reinterment of the remains of two little girls who were tomahawked and scalped by the Indians in Greenville in the year 1812. The remains have been exhumed, and are in a remarkable state of preservation. For this remarkable reinterment a dozen little misses have been selected as pall-bearers, and other arrangements are being made to make this feature of the occasion notable and memorable.

LITERATURE, MUSIC AND ART.

THE illustrator of "Little Men" is Miss Greene, a special friend of Miss Alcott's and the "Lizzie Small" of "An Old Fashioned Girl."

THE Riverside Press is to publish "Poems by William M. Burleigh," edited by Celia Burleigh, who has written a prefatory memoir.

A HANDSOME re-issue of Major Theodore Winthrop's works is now being published by Messrs. James R. Osgood & Co. Cecil Dreeme, John Brent, and Edwin Brothertoft, uniformly bound in fancy cloth covers of unique design, are ready.

RICHARD WAGNER will give his Nibelungen operas at the theatre of Bayreuth, Bavaria, the use of which has been granted him for the purpose. The Emperor of Germany and the King of Bavaria will be present at the representation of the gigantic musical trilogy.

MADAME DUDEVANT, (George Sand) is reported to be better renumerated for her writings than any other female author alive. By her new contract with the Revue des Deux Mondes she is to have 200 francs a column ($40), the columns not to exceed 500 words, retaining the right to publish her contributions afterwards in book form.

THE July number of Old and New has been prepared especially with regard to the present commencement season, containing articles concerning various college matters from five Presidents and as many other professors. Besides this, this number contains the first three chapters of Ups and Downs, a new novel by the Rev. Edward Everett Hale.

NOT more than four or five years ago a distinguished Boston publisher of much experience advised the friends of a certain young lady that she had better stick to school-teaching,—she would never make anything of a writer. It was but a new proof of the fallibility of the wisest of us, for the young lady was Miss Louisia M. Alcott, whose new book, "Little Men," sold twenty six thousand copies before the day of publication.

THE success of scientific books is remarkable. Professor Tyndal's "Fragments of Science" went off like a new novel—better than many new novels do. The success of this work, and of Huxley's "Lay Sermons," has led the publisher to announce a similar collection by Herbert Spencer. The title of this volume will be "Recent Discoveries in Science, Philosophy, and Morals," and will consist of Mr. Spencer's late papers on these subjects.

THE severest comment upon Page's [illegible] seen is by a noted St. Louis Chris- It is simply in- ure of the kind I cture of a lusty young fisherman, yellow hair, red lippell his complexion soiled by a cross between lager beer and Rhine wine, his hair spoiled by attempting to change the Saxon blonde to some other color. The mouth is gross, the eyes those of a young man who had not spent the night properly. There is nothing divine in any expression The old conventional, stiff, effeminate, meaningless pictures of Jesus were bad enough, but this picture has neither womanly beauty nor manly strength.

WILHELM WOLFF, the Berlin sculptor, has just finished an altogether original group of four lions. The mother lioness has just been struck by a fatal arrow, and in her face, there is an almost human expression of mingled pain and dread of approaching death, for her limbs are already stiffening. An unconscious little cub is leisurely taking its accustomed nourishment, and another is scrambling sportively over her back, probably with the same end in view. But most striking of all is the figure of the male lion. The bereaved king of the desert stands, full of grief, and wrath, behind his dying partner, and with head extended and vengeful eye, he gazes into the distance, as if trying to discover who has slain his beloved. He looks as if he had just given a howl awful enough to make the desert tremble.

MR. FROUDE, the historian of the Tudors and editor of Frazer's Magazine, has lately, after a long interval, availed himself of the "Clergy Disabilities Act" and retired from the ministry of the Church of England. Mr. Froude, who is now 53 years of age, graduated from Oxford high in classics, took the Chancellor's prize for the English essays, on political economy, and was elected Fellow of Exeter College in 1842. He was one of the early adherents of Pusey and Newman, who wrote much in "The Lives of English Saints," and took the deacon's orders in 1844. He was the author of "The Shadow of the cloud," published in 1847, and the "Nemesis of Faith," published in 1849, he took to writing articles in the Westminster Review and Frazer's Magazine, chiefly on English history, and in 1856 published the first volume of the "History of England from the Fall of Wolsey." In 1857 he published "Short Studies on Great Subjects." His theological views have long ago undergone such changes that further continuance in the Church of England became out of the question.

THE first part of the new English commentary on the Bible, known as the Speaker's Commentary, has been issued. Mr. Welford, in his letter to the Rock Bugee, says of it: The portions of the Commentary now published comprise the Pentateuch entire. In its treatment, the learning and strong sense of the principal editor of the division, Dr. Harold Browne, Bishop of Ely—one of the most distinguished members of the Episcopal Bench—are plainly apparent. The "General Introduction" is on the authorship and date of the Pentateuch, and is a masterly production; many of the longer critical notes are models of compression, and form complete dissertations in little; while in the essays appended on particular subjects, as those by Canon Cooke on "The Bearings of Egyptian History on the Pentateuch," and "On Egytian Words in the Pentateuch," the latest results of antiquarian research are given with great fulness and perspicuity. It is announced officially that the progress of the succeeding portions of the work will be more rapid, and two volumes, including the historical and Poetical Books, will probably be printed within twelve months.

Precocious Depravity.

The N. Y. World says:

A young gentleman who was born in this city in the year 1857 has recently achieved notoriety in Albany and Troy. His name is Abram Anthony. He was a precocious boy, learning to read when he was but four years old, and even at that early age refusing—so his grandmother says—to eat his breakfast before he had read the newspapers and ascertained the price of gold; he was a terrible infant. About two years ago, having recently become an orphan, he went to Troy and lived with his grandmother, from whom he stole things, and in whose name he obtained goods under false pretences. His grandmother took exception to this, and he left her in disgust a few months ago, intending to make his fortune in Albany. But he went not thither, being wiley; he sojourned with his brother at Ireland Corners for the purpose of becoming acquainted with the business of Mr. Gore, his brother's employer, in order to make that his base of operations. He was there six weeks, and then repaired to the scene of his contemplated exploits. He had learned that Mr. Gore's credit was good in Albany, and so went around to the shops of merchants ordering liquors, cigars, tobacco, teas, coffees, spices, and other sorts of wares, all consigned to Mr. Gore. He told various stories; now he was about open a store at the Corners, and now he had hired the Home Lawn Hotel. He went to Mr. Payne, the tobacconist, and ordered cigars. Mr. Payne suspected that all was not right, and wrote to Mr. Gore, and then the precocious lad was arrested. It seemed preposterous that a boy of 14 years had alone built up such a scheme, and when a detective asked him to explain he boldly said, "You dare not send me to jail," and then said that he had backers in New York, among whom were Judge Barnard and Sheriff O'Brien. Other infinite lies he told. What is true, however, is that he is a smart boy who has got into trouble. Probably he will be sentenced to prison when the Albany County Grand Jury meets, although several gentlemen have interested themselves in his behalf.

An Uncommonly Mean Thief in Philadelphia.

[From the Philadelphia Gazette, June 27.]

There resides on Charlotte street, above Canal, a woman who, on Saturday last, had a very sick child. On that day a German, named Fergus, called, and representing himself to be a medical man, offered to prescribe for the child. Assent was given. He stated that he cured all diseases by "nervous sympathy." He gave the child some medicine and asked the woman for a $2 bill. He put some medicine on it and gave it back, and then left. He called a half hour later, according to promise, and, after propounding a number of questions, asked if she had any money in the house. She stated that she had $40. He asked her to bring it to him, which she did. He then sprinkled the money with his medicine and told her to go up stairs and resprinkle the sick child with it. This she did, leaving the money with him. When she descended it was to find both the money and the bogus doctor gone. Unfortunately for Fergus, he was arrested Sunday, and by Alderman Riddle sent to prison in default of $1,000 bail.

NEW YORK, June 29, 1871.
Gold opened at 113, sold up to 113¾ and closed still but firm at 112¾@113. From one to two per cent was paid for carrying. Clearings for the millions. Bonds orders are up premium over smaller coins. Exports today $425,000. Awards at the government sale are one million at 113.06@113.10 1-10.
Governments are strong and higher; 5-20 issues have advanced from ¼ to ⅝ per cent. There was an active demand for Central Pacific bonds this afternoon, which led to an advance of ¼ per cent.
Stocks opened active with an upward tendency, especially for Lake Shore and Ohios, but the bears stopped and checked the advance momentarily. The market is so largely oversold that all active stocks are loaning flat. A buoyant market is looked for for July. St. Paul, New York Central and Reading have stood up well in this decline, and it is said the stock in the three boards is mostly held by the directors. Ohios have been strong all day. Hannibal and St. Joe stocks were higher this afternoon, and in demand to cover speculative sales. The market closed steady. Money easy at 3 per cent. State bonds steady, without material change in price.
Sterling exchange, 110¾.

PITTSBURGH MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, FRIDAY, June 29, 1871.
ASHES—Common Soda Ash, 4¾@4¾; refined do, 4¾@4¾; Pearls, 6¾@6¾; Pots, 7¼@7¾.
BUTTER—Continues slow and, notwithstanding the receipts ah only moderate, the supply is fully up to thidemand; we continue to quote at 18c for strictly prime, with an occasional small sale of choice at 20c. Grease butter, 8@9c.
BROOM CORN—Very tall, scarcely enough doing to establish quotations.
BEANS—$1.50@2.00 per bushel.
BEESWAX—Quoted at 33@35.
CEMENT—Louisville, $2.50@3.00 per bbl. Rosendale, $4.00@4.50; Calcined Plaster, $4.25@4.50.
CHEESE—Is in fair demand, but prices are lower; prime Goshen, 13@13½; prime Factory, 11; Dairy, 10.
COUNTRY BACON—Continues very sluggish and the wants of packer dealers are anxious to realize. Country Lard is selling at 9@10.
MEAL—The demand is light and re[illegible] to small lots while prices are unchanged, 80@85 cts per bushel.
CANNED GOODS—Tomatoes scarce and in demand; standard brands sell readily at 82½. Peaches, $2 for 2 lb, and $3.25@3.50 for 3 lb cans. Corn, $2.
CARBON OIL—Is still quoted in a jobbing way at 23@25 cts, for standard brands—usual advance for small lots.
EGGS—The market continues very slow, and prices are weak and unsettled, with sales reported to-day at 15 17 and 18c holders generally are still asking 18c for strictly fresh, but they go very slow at that figure. The indications, at the present writing, are that prices will go lower.
FLOUR—Is rather unsettled; buyers are still inclined to hold off on the one hand, holders although more disposed to sell, are unwilling to make concessions; in fact, there is little or no margin at present prices, and dealers cannot make concessions without incurring a loss. We continue to quote at $7.00@7.25 for good spring extras; $7.50@7.75 for choice baker's flour; and $7.25@7.50 for red winter. Rye flour, in a small way, $6.
FRUITS—Green apples are coming in more freely, and the market is easier with a drooping tendency; we quote at $3@4 per bbl, as to quality. Turkey Prunes, 10c; French, 12@13; Layer Raisins, $4.00 per box; Valencia, 12@13; Lemons and Oranges, $7.00 12½@13 cts per lb.
GRAIN—The receipts continue very meagre and there does not seem to be much inquiry but there does not seem any nominally unchanged; $1.40@1.45 red and $1.50@1.53 for white. Oats, quiet and unchanged; 60@61 buying and 62@64 selling—small lots, in store, 66@68. The feeling generally does not seem to be as strong as it was a few days since, and it is thought that the coming crop, under the influence of the recent copious rains, will turn out considerably better than was anticipated, that while it will be short in the straw, it is likely to fill much better than was expected. Corn is in comparatively light supply and firmer, but not quotably higher; mixed ear, in bulk, 67@68; mixed shelled, 70 and prime yellow 72. Rye, very little offering and not much inquiry for it; we continue to quote at 70@75.
GROCERIES—The grocery market, as is nearly always the case at this season of the year, is rather quiet and devoid of any news worthy of special notice. There is a very good trade in sugars and it is likely that there will be for the next three months or for what the fruit season is over.
COFFEE—Fancy 18c, 18½; Prime, 17½; Good, Mid; 17; Low Mid, 16½@16¾.
SUGARS AND DRIPS—White Honey, 72; Savoyner & Riders, 72; Silver Drips, 69; other grades, 65@66.
SUGARS—Choice New Orleans, 11¾; prime, 11; good, 10¾; fully fair, 10¼; Porto Rico Sugars, 11¾; Cuba, 10@11; Demarara, 11¾; Crushed, 13¾.
LOAF SUGARS—Hard Sugars 13¾; A Cotton "B," 13¾; Extra C 12¾; C, yellow, 12¾.
MOLASSES—New Orleans, choice, 70; prime, 65; good, 60.
TEAS—Fancy Young Hyson, $1 60; Good, $1 40; Fair, $1 20; Common grades down to 70cts. Fancy Imperial, $1 80; good, $1 60; fair, $1 40; Special Imperial, $1 40; good, $1 20; fair, $1; Young Hyson, $1 20; good, 100; fair, 90; Common, 80; Souchong fancy, $1 20; good, 90c; fair, 70@80c. Japan Fancy, $1; good, 90c; fair, 75c.
RICE—Choice Carolina, 10c; prime, 9¾c; good, 9c.
SPICES—Grain Pepper, 22c. Pimento, 17c. Cloves, 20c. Cassia, 55c.
HAY—Continues scarce and the recent advance is still maintained; sales of baled on wharf at $25@30. Wagon hay is quotable at $25@35.
HONEY—We can report sales in a regular way at 25@30 cts per lb, for fair to choice.
HIDES—Green Salted, 10¾@11¼; Green Butcher's, 8; Dry Flint, 21@22; Green Calf Skins, 14@15; Green Salted Calf, 17@18.
HUSKS—Quoted at 2¾@2¾ cts.
HEMP—Rough Kentucky, $175 per ton; dressed, 14 cts per lb.
LIME—Sales of Cleveland at $2.25 per bbl and eastern at $1.75.
MILL FEED—We can report an occasional sale of middlings at $1.70@1.75. Not much inquiry for coarse feed.
OIL—Lard Oil is still quoted at 75 for No. 1 Extra—70@80, in a small way.
PEA NUTS—Quoted at 10¾@11 cts.
POULTRY—Offerings of chickens small, though there is no advance in prices; 70@75 cts per pair for live spring fowls.
PROVISIONS—Hams are firmer and higher, and sugar cured shoulders are in brisk demand and selling up somewhat; plain sides are steady and sales continue quite dull. Plain Shoulders, 7@7¼ cts; sugar cured do, 10¾@10¾ cts; Sides, 9c for ribbed and 10 for clear; Breakfast Bacon, 13@13½; Hams, 15¾@16. Dried Beef, 18@20. Lard, in tes, 11; in kegs and buckets, 12. Mess Pork, $17.00.
POTATOES—The receipts are on the increase but the supply is still small, not equal to the demand, and prices, in consequence, maintained; sales reported at $7.00@8.25 per bbl.
SEEDS—There is nothing doing in seeds. Flaxseed would sell but there is none offering.

PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, THURSDAY, June 29, 1871.
The market was very quiet to-day, remarkably so, when we take into consideration that to-morrow is settlement day, and, if reports are true, there are a good many contracts out yet unsettled. It was reported Saturday, on pretty good authority, that some of the bearish shorts in crude oil do not propose to either deliver the oil or settle, taking present prices as a basis; if we understand the matter correctly, they take the ground that there is a bull combination, composed principally of operators in the oil regions, who, by manipulation, have succeeded in inflating prices for the purpose of realizing big differences. How the matter will terminate it is difficult, at the present writing, to conjecture, though it does look as if there would be trouble. The shorts feel that they are not bound, under the circumstances, to cover these contracts; they are willing to settle, taking as a basis the legitimate market price, a price they are willing to afford to pay, and have a fair manufacturer's profit.
CRUDE.
But a single sale reported, 1,000 bbls seller all year at 12¾. Spot quoted at 12¾@—nothing doing. Parties who have inquiry for 30 to 40 bbls per day for July offered freely at 13. Parker—offered at $5 with no buyers. Buyer all year nominal at 13¾@13¾.

PITTSBURGH WOOL MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, THURSDAY, June 29, 1870.
We have no particular change to note in the Wool market since our last report so far as we can learn, the market still remains now in the growers hands, and buyers, having filled their orders, are busily engaged in sacking and shipping their wools as they are collected at various points in the country—prices are firm and high, and will most likely rule high through the season. It is an unusual thing to see the entire clip of the country so thoroughly cleaned up as early in the season, and proves very conclusively that the clip of the country must be falling off very materially from previous years. Our quotations are nominal at 50@55c for the various grades, in good condition, with ¾ discount on all unmerchantable wool.

RIVER NEWS.

The river continues to recede steadily with 2 feet 6 inches in the channel. Weather clear, cool and pleasant.
The Belle arrived from St. Louis with five empty barges. She left 1,650 tons of iron ore at Cincinnati.
The Belle Rowland departed for St. Louis yesterday with all the freight she could take on the water. Pilots, Andy Bunting and John Ferguson.
The Messenger was aground on Wednesday night at Rowley but succeeded in getting off on Thursday morning.
The new tow boat Charley McDonald left for Rochester on Wednesday night, from which point she takes a tow of pig iron to Cincinnati, and will return with a tow of empty barges.
The R. H. Durfee was expected to arrive at Sioux City on Sunday last.
—We clip the following details in regard to the sinking of the Leonidas, from the Cincinnati Gazette of Wednesday: The Leonidas lies in about the same position as the Kanawha, only settling down more at the bow and stern, the hog chains having broken. Lighters are alongside removing the freight. The boat will prove a total loss, and the greater part of the freight be much damaged. From the slanting position in which the boat lies her upper works are liable to slide off. Mr. S. F. Covington telegraphed yesterday morning to the Globe Insurance company that the Kanawha Kinney will probably take her uninjured freight to its destination. About fifteen years ago Capt. Sturgeon's steamer, Bullfrog, struck the same log that sunk the Leonidas, and broke ninety floor timbers.
The cargo of the Leonidas was insured in this city for an amount ranging between $50,000 and $60,000, distributed among the various offices. The following is the insurance on the boat:

Andes	$5,000
Germania	2,500
Union	2,000
Farmers'	1,500
Total	$11,000

—At New Orleans, about one o'clock Friday morning, the dredge boat No. 1, belonging to D. F. Kenner, and lying at the Lake End, took fire and before the flames could be arrested burned to the water's edge. It was valued at $40,000, but to what extent it was insured could not be learned. The chief engineer, Mr. Jones, was on the boat at the time of the fire, but he could give no information as to the manner in which it originated.
—A new steamer is being built at Kingston, Tennessee, under the superintendence of Captain Henegar. It will be a pretty large craft, the dimensions being 125 feet long, 21 feet wide and 3 feet depth of hold. Mr. Henry C. Murray, of Evansville, Ind., an experienced and and skillful ship carpenter, is in charge of the work.
—The case of the owners of the Potomac (burned at the Cincinnati shipyard several years ago) against the National insurance company of Wheeling, comes up in the West Virginia court of appeals next month. The suit was brought to recover $5,000, the amount of the National's risk on the Potomac.
—Efforts are being made to have the $500 fine refunded that was assessed against and paid by the captain of the steamer Mary Kate State for neglecting to renew certain papers of the boat before making a trip after their expiration.
—The Tennessee river steamer Mary Kate has been purchased by the Messrs. Hinds, of Knoxville, and will carry the mail between Bridgeport and Decatur, Alabama.
—The D. L. Tally, on her last up trip, broke her doctor's shaft, when a short distance above New Orleans, and was compelled to return to that city for repairs.
—A dispatch dated Dubuque, 24th, says the Antelope is nearly raised, and that the steam pumps had done good service.
—The Mary Houston has laid up at Portland. There is now no boat receiving freight at Louisville for New Orleans.
—Before his death, Capt. Coker made a will in which he appropriated $1,000 for the prosecution of his murderer.
—The steamer Lightest sunk in upper Red river on the 17th, and is a total loss.

CONSUMPTION.
Its Cure and its Preventive.
BY J. H. SCHENCK, M.D.
Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proven means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted
DR. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT, and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.
Dr. Schenck has in his own case proved that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.
In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. The faith of the invalid is made no presumption that's not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self-assuring, self-convincing.
The Sea-weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the great two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is attacked. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functional disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the mortification of the liver. Here then comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms of CONSUMPTION.
The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophyllin Peltatum. They passess all the cathartic and alterative properties of calomel, but, unlike calomel, they Leave no Bad Effects in any of its forms.
The price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea-weed Tonic is $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 the half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers. apl8:hpu:MWF Desirable.—In the column of "For Sale," our readers will see the advertisement of a most desirable country residence, at Superior Station, Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne and Chicago Railroad. This is one of the few places that combine the pleasures of a rural home with the advantages of a city residence. Look at this property before purchasing elsewhere.

Suicide at McKeesport.—On Sunday last Mr. James Liddy, of McKeesport, died from the effect of a dose of laudanum taken on the previous day. Deceased was a married man about forty-five years. This is the second time he attempted to take his life. Some time ago he took a dose of poison, but it was discovered in time to prevent fatal consequences. This time, however, the physician was not made in time to reieive him, and he died, as stated, on Sunday last. No cause has been assigned for the act.

The preparation has been so thorough, and so many trained voices will engage in the chorus, that it is safe to promise that that this exhibition will prove more interesting, attractive and edifying than any of the similar annual entertainments gotten up by Professor Neal heretofore, although that of 1870 was pronounced a great success. We hope the efforts of the worthy manager will be richly rewarded.

THE FATAL SHOT.

Murder Trial at Court—Result of a Disagreement—Louis Winklefouse the Defendant—Particulars of the Case—The Testimony.

Yesterday morning Louis Winklefouse, was arraigned in the Court of Over and Terminer, for the murder of Daniel O'Leary, by shooting him on the night of the 29th of May, 1871.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES

connected with the murder are doubtless fresh in the minds of our readers. On the 29th of May last, a lodge of Red Men held a picnic near Camden, a little village about three miles above McKeesport, on the south side of the Monongahela river. It appears that some trouble sprang up between Winklefouse and the deceased, and several other persons present on the occasion. It was supposed that the difficulty had been settled before leaving the grounds; but in the evening, about dusk, as Winklefouse was on his way home, it seems he was met by the deceased, in company with one or two others, on the road near Davis' tavern, a short distance from the river. Some words passed between the deceased and Winklefouse, when the latter drew a revolver and shot O'Leary, causing instant death.

It was alleged by Winklefouse that the others had made an assault on him, striking him on the side of the head with a stone, which inflicted serious injury; and that he had acted purely in self-defence, fearing that his life was in danger. After the shooting occurred, he at once gave himself up to the authorities, had a hearing before the coroner, committed to jail for trial at this term of court.

THE COUNSEL IN THE CASE.

At the trial yesterday the Commonwealth was represented by District Attorney Barkson, R. M. Gibson, Esq., and R. J. Powers, Esq., while Thomas M. Marshall and John Dalzell, Esq., acted for the defense. The prisoner is a young man apparently not over twenty years of age.

EMPANNELING A JURY.

Nearly two hours were consumed in empanneling a jury. Five were challenged in consequence of their having formed an opinion. Several others were excused on conscientious scruples about hanging. At length the following jury was empanneled: John Davidson, Hiram Vincent, David Thompson, Jacob Bushey, G. H. Starr, Andrew Craighead, John Ochs, Ernest Eggers, D. M. Smith, James Robinson, W. P. Beadell, Michael Hoffa.

TESTIMONY FOR THE PROSECUTION.

The Commonwealth then proceeded to call witnesses.

Mr. Belzer testified that on the night in question, he saw Winklefouse draw a pistol on the road, while he was quarreling with O'Leary. O'Leary said "put that up," and then they walked away together; heard a ... away from them, and as ... around to them saw prisoner drop ... shoot, and then run up the road; ... fifteen or twenty feet from them ... while they were going up the ... heard O'Leary say, "Stand back;" ... pistol in prisoner's right hand; ... after shooting started on a sort of trot up the road; O'Leary was sober.

Court then took a recess until half-past one o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Court reassembled at half-past one o'clock, and after waiting fifteen minutes for all the counsel together, the examination of witnesses was resumed.

John Jones, sworn.—Live at Camden; was at the picnic about a minute after O'Leary was shot, and found him lying on the road on his back; heard the shooting and ran to the place; heard O'Leary say, "Danny, has he killed you;" he said "Yes, Johnny, I'm gone;" I was on the porch of Mrs. Burns house when I saw them; they were both in the middle of the road; O'Leary was going toward the coal shed; he stooped down and raised up; heard O'Leary said "Put that in your pocket;" Winklefouse said "I will if you stand back;" I heard no more and went back into the house; did not see anything in O'Leary's hands; came out again when the shot was fired.

Cross-examined.—Saw nothing in any of the men's hands; saw the defendant after they met I heard O'Leary say something about fighting Winklefouse; it was between eight and nine o'clock when I saw them together; it was moonlight.

Mrs. Burns, sworn.—I live in Camden; can step out of my door to the road; I saw this shooting; it was on a moonlight evening; I was sitting on my door-step with Mary O'Leary (deceased's sister); I first saw the men talking on the road; had about sat down when I heard no insulting words pass between them; never knew of bad feeling between the men.

Jane Davis, Jr., sworn.—Was in bed with my head out of the window looking at the men; I saw several men, among whom was O'Leary, talking together; Winklefouse then came along; O'Leary said: "How are you, Louey;" Winklefouse drew a pistol from his left pocket and said: "Stand back, O'Leary," said: "Put that up, I want to talk with you;" then Winklefouse kept pointing the pistol backward and sidewards, O'Leary following; the difficulty occurred—all that I could see—between Davis' tavern and the watering trough; I heard no insulting words pass between them; never knew of bad feeling between the men.

Dr. E. ... sworn.—Examined—Betzer was on one side, ... the other and Winklefouse about ... of the road; they moved in this ... behind the coal shed; paid no ... to them after that.

O'Leary then, with ... her oath, said, "I don't want to shake ... with that," and stooped to one side and picked up something; then deceased backed Winklefouse back a little further and Winklefouse has a good reputation for peace and quietness.

Cross-examined—O'Leary sprang at him before he drew the pistol; the thing that O'Leary picked up looked like a piece of brick; John Gilgallon called me out of bed at two o'clock the next morning; I told him I did not see the shooting; he said I knew it was a "rascally murder;" I said I knew nothing about it.

John Jones testified to having heard O'Leary talk that evening of fighting with Louis and threatening to whip him.

John Vaughn—Boarded at Davis' tavern; I was ready to go to bed that night; I heard talking on the road; opened my window and looked out; saw Winklefouse and O'Leary and Belzer all walking along. Winklefouse backing; Winklefouse said "Danny I'm drunk and you want to whip me."

Christian Yeager saw the three men moving along the road and heard a voice saying "go for him," but could not tell who it was that spoke; he was looking at the men and the voice came from behind him; he turned round but could see no one; he then heard the shot fired.

James Humphreys testified to the meeting of Winklefouse and O'Leary in front of Davis' tavern and the words that passed between them as stated by the other witnesses.

Wm. Cole (a boy who said he was fourteen years of age) testified that he had been at the picnic and saw the fight; I had a talk with Winklefouse at the picnic after the fight and told him to look out, that those "fellows" (O'Leary and Kilgallan) threatened to kick the livers out of him inside of three days." This was about three o'clock; he had no marks on him at that time; O'Leary was not in the fight.

Charles Wriser (another boy) testified that the pic-nic had been held at Dravosburg; Winklefouse would have to go through Camden to get home; Winklefouse that Dennis O'Leary threatened to kick the "livers out of him."

Nicholas Vagely, (thirteen years of age) was called up and previous to testifying was put through a preliminary examination by Judge Shaw in relation to his understanding of the nature of an oath. His answers being satisfactory he was allowed to testify, but had nothing new to state.

Cristopher Koch—Had been at the pic-nic; came down from the pic-nic with Louis Winklefouse; was behind half way down the hill, each going toward home; this was between seven and eight o'clock.
